

GP-Spin 10th Anniversary Symposium

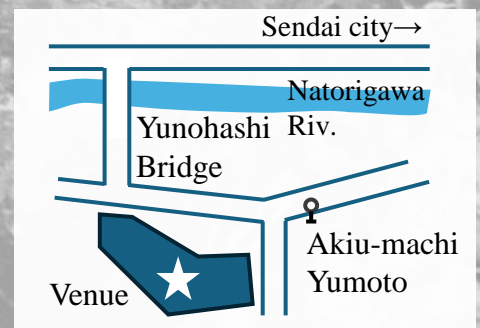

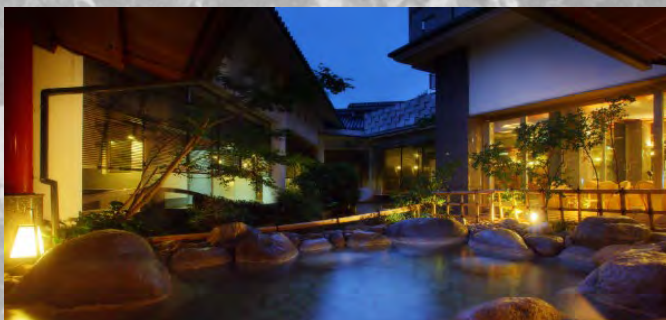

It has been 10 years since the Graduate Program in Spintronics (GP-Spin) was established as Tohoku University's first international joint graduate school program to foster world-class young researchers in the field of spintronics in collaboration with overseas educational and research institutions. In the past 10 years, we have received tremendous support from many overseas research institutes and researchers for international joint research, QE, and joint degree guidance. We will hold a symposium on the progress of the program over the past 10 years and the activities and research of graduates and current students on this program.

Date:
